

Abstract

The present invention relates to a safety device for reliably stopping weights, where a clamping system blocking the movement of the weight is controlled by a valve that works in cooperation with the weight body.

The main drawing is Figure 1.